employed in violation of the state laws pertaining to labor, Factory In-spector George L. McLean has filed complaints with Prosecuting Attorney John F. Forward of Hartford and the prosecuting attorney of the city of New London against concerns which manufacture candles and ice cream. One complaint has been lodged in New London against a laundryman Several more complaints for prosecutions are maturing. The reasons for these violations, assigned by the in-spector, are that in summer the confectionery stores that carry ice cream want to keep open for the late trade. The wet wash laundries want to get heir work turned out at a fixed time the employment of women hits them the hardest. This is especially so in July, August and September.

In endeavoring to get the law enforced, Mr. McLeau says it does not matter whether the women are willing to work overtime. It is contrary to the statutes to be employed. This point was settled some time ago by the supreme court of the United States. The Hartford complaint is against J. & G. Pappars, proprietors of the Capitol Candy company at No. 224 Asylum Street, Hartford, Besides Rt. Rev. Bishop McMahon, then bishop of the Hartford diocese.

Judge Ralph Wheeler has announced his decision regarding the demurrer to the remonstrance concerning the special committee's report on the damages because of the highway change to the Connecticut river bridge, at Old Lyme, by loverruling it.

The demurrer is to a whole pleading and not to paragraphs. There is a paragraph in the remonstrance which alleges some error in some way arises as to land value. There are other paragraphs under which testimony may be admissible tending to show that damages were included which were neither direct or immediate but too remote. One paragraph appears to raise a question of law in regard to damages occasioned by surface water and another raises a question as to damages occasioned by surface water and another raises a question as to Additions to Maennerchor Completed—Notes of Local Interest.

The large additions to the Maennerchor club house, off Norwich avenue, have been completed and are now being painted. These additions will double the size of the building. The club is planning to hold a formal opening and the occasion is anticipated with great pleasure. The date for the affair has not been definitely decided.

Taise a question of law in regard to damages docusioned by surface water and another raises a question as to damages for use of highway by trolley, while another alleges that the committee did not take into consideration benefits accruing to the land owner. It appears proper for the court to hear testimony upon these subjects upon a remonstrance calling for a rejection of the report of the committee. The demurrer is overruled.

much has been accomplished in the way of its prevention by hygiene and sanitation, but there has recently come into use a new method of prevention, known as typhcid vaccination. This promises important results, especially in military camps, and is applicable to all individuals liable to exposure to typhoid infection. It has also been recommended as a cure for the chronic typhoid bacillus carrier. The measure much has been accomplished in typhold bacillus carrier. The measure is simple, easy of execution and af-fords protection when all else fails. It has been tried in the English and at the recent army maneuvers in Texas. The war department was so grat-ified by the results obtained that, on June 9 of the present year, an order was issued requiring the vaccination against typhoid of all soldiers on en-ing on agar a non-virulent strain of the typhoid tacillus. The cultures after being incubated for a certain time are washed off in a salt solution, and the emulsion heated over a water bath for one hour, in order to kill all the bacilli. The emulsion is standardized by counting the number of bacteria in a sample of the unkilled emulsion. After it is cooled it is diluted with salt solution, and one-quarter per cent. of tricresol added as an antiseptic. An-imal tests are made for living bacteria or contaminating organisms.

The vaccine is injected into the sub-cutaneous tissue of the arm at the in-sertion of the detloid. It is given in sertion of the detloid. It is given in three doses, each ten days apart. The first does contains 500,000,000 bacteria, while the second and third doses are quite as large and ontain 1,000,000,000 bacteria each in a definite amount of fluid. It is not yet certainly known how long the protective power of the vaccination lasts, but it is thought to he five or six years. This vaccine is now manufactured by concerns dealing in vaccines and antitoxines and can be purchased in the market.
